Thursday, September 10, 7:00 PM
Logan Library Bridger Room, 255 North Main

John Engler has been teaching writing at Utah State University for twelve years and deeply enjoys working with his students. The author of essays, stories, articles, and now twenty-two annual Valentine's poems to his wife, Engler is currently working on a commissioned screenplay and a book about teaching. He and his wife are deeply invested in the lives of their six children, their daughter-in-law, and the approaching completion of a decade-long building and remodel project of their turn-of-the-(last)-century home.

Born and raised in Seattle, Lisa Roullard earned her MFA in Creative Writing at Eastern Washington University. Her poetry has appeared in various magazines, including Brain, Child; New Orleans Review; and Literal Latte. Her work has also appeared on buses in Boise, Idaho, as part of Poetry in Motion. In 2013 she won the Utah Original Writing Competition for poetry. Lisa lives in Salt Lake City with her family, a trio of book lovers. As often as possible she walks in the rain.
